FACULTY

Principal

Fond as we are of looking backward and congratulating ourselves upon the progress in the past, we have scarcely thought seriously about tomorrow. Take pride in the biography contained in the 1965 Deer Leap, but direct your talents to the successful performance of the tasks in the future.

CLASS POEM

It's good-bye, just good-bye, not farewell or adieu;
For Bristol High School
remember you.
We thank the teachers whom we've learned to know.
Though it saddens us, we must go.

Thanks, also, to parents and friends,
For helping us obtain this end.
We, like so many that have gone
before,
Leave with regret to return no more.

Our future's uncertain though plans we have made.
For life you've prepared us,
with each rising grade.
Good-bye, just good-bye, dear
Bristol High,
From the grateful Class of '65.

Frances Goodrich

CLASS SONG

Tune: Wonderful Copenhagen

Hail and farewell dear Bristol High School,
We must be leaving you now;
We'll meet again
Though we know not when,
Someday, sometime, somehow.

We've had our share of fun and laughter,
Work and study each day,
How the years have flown,
Now we're on our own
And you've helped us on our way.

Oh wonderful, wonderful, Bristol High School
We must be leaving you now;
So we'll say good-bye,
Hold our heads up high,
Now that the future is ours.

Wonderland

By Night

The Junior-Senior Prom was presented by the class of '65 on May 22, 1964, at the Mountain Street School auditorium. The garden setting perfectly fit the theme of "Wonderland by Night." To create the Wonderland, the Junior class decorated the auditorium by placing a beautiful antique stained foot-bridge with white birch railings at the entrance door and a white picket fence enclosing the tables, which were covered by an evergreen canopy. In the center of the auditorium was a "Wishing Well" finished in antique stain and surrounded by a small picket fence. Colored lights shone on the deep blue sky effect that was created with strips of blue crepe paper, and on the lacy white iron love seat surrounded by evergreens.

King Rodrique Cousino and Queen Michelle Bouvier were crowned by Senior Advisor, Mrs. Ruth Lamont, and Junior Advisor, Joseph Medor.

The melodious music for the evening was furnished by the "Vermonters," directed by Dillon Baldwin of Middlebury.

Class

The B.H.S. '65 made ready for its twelve year journey at Dike and Carpenter Harbor in 1953. Captain Brian Ladeau stood by while First Mate Reg Dearborn and Second Mate Brad Bedard gave orders to the crew. All were working diligently to get the liner ship-shape for the long voyage ahead. Up on the bow we saw Lenny Cousino and Tom McKean polishing the ship's brass to a lustrous gleam. Ross Orvis and Jim Purinton were diligently swabbing the decks while Eddie Tucker checked the cables.

Claire Dumas, the ship's hostess and social director, was down in the lounge briefing her staff. The ship's waitresses were Judy Vincent, Ardith Smith, Pat Guthrie, and Frances Goodrich. In charge of social activities were Kathy Lord, Darlene Doolittle, Lois Devino, and Janna Kilbourn. Judy Benedict entertained nightly with exotic dancing and singing routines.

Down in the kitchen Mike Booska, our chef, whipped up a hearty meal assisted by Denny McDonough.

On board were three temporary hands, Ellen O'Neill, Bernadette Cousino, and Bill Lathrop.

A tragic accident occurred in June of the first year of the trip; Ellen O'Neill fell overboard and was lost at sea. We were all very sad about it.

At Port Orvis DeCoursey, Seaman Bill Lathrop transferred to another ship and we hired Basil Bursey to replace him. Dick Dwyer was hired under a three year contract to head the staff of working seamen. We sailed from the port realizing that our crew was too small and that we would have to secure more help at our next stop.

At the Twin Harbors of O'Connor and McKean we recruited Craig Scribner, Elaine Bromley, and Flora Perlee. Unfortunately, Bernie Cousino left the ship that year.

When we docked at Baslow Beach, Eva Mastalos was hired as the new athletics director. Dick Dwyer's three-year contract was up, so we left him at Trombley Wharf to find other employment.

We sailed into the port of Sperry DeCoursey, hoping to find a replacement for Dick. Bob O'Bryan filled the bill.

History

On our way into Burke Jackman's Cove we spotted a man who had just fallen overboard from the ship just ahead of ours. We pulled him out of the water and learned that his name was David Clark. We were understaffed, so we hired him on the spot.

Half of our long voyage was over when we docked at the Port of Whitcomb and Wright. We had worked hard that year, but Mike Tanner had joined the crew to help out.

After sailing for a long while, we entered the privately owned harbor of some good friends, Mrs. Ryan and Mr. Citro, who showed us much hospitality during our stay. While we were there a former official, Dick Dwyer, decided to join our crew again.

After the eighth year of our trip, we had become prosperous enough to enlarge our crew. Cindy Wedge, Dixie Stokes, Sharon Atkins, and Linda Rublee were hired to work in our new and enlarged kitchen. Under the supervision of Mr. Drabble and Mr. Brasure, we took on seven more men for various jobs. These men were Gary Orvis, Roger Tatro, Roger Atkins, Mike Fitzpatrick, Bill Lathrop, Warner Pierce, and John Provoncha.

During the next year, Mr. Drabble and Mr. Brasure hired two new workers, Ellen O'Neill and Dom Whitcomb, who had been rescued by a passing ship a few years before.

In our next year Mr. Medor was hired to replace Mr. Brasure, but Mr. Drabble stayed on. Diane Adams and Gail Zeno applied for jobs and were accepted.

Now we were entering the last 175 days of our voyage. We welcomed on board Nancy Dike and Donna Melvin, to help us enjoy our last few months. Miss Nicholson and Mr. Drabble helped us to sail into Graduation Bay and on our way to prepare for the future.

Although we all enjoyed our trip, we're glad to be on our way, leaving many wonderful friends and memories behind us.

Class Prophecy

We are going to take a look at a thriving little city founded in 1970 by the class of 1965.

We shall first take a look at the business section of Metropolis, U.S.A.

They have established their own little Wall Street, where the first office we see belongs to a registered broker who is none other than Robert O'Bryan. On the register we also see the names of other prominent businessmen such as Michael Tanner, Ross Orvis, and Basil Bursey.

Among the secretaries in the city we recognize Darlene Doolittle, Ardith Smith, and Judy Benedict.

We can see David Clark's Real Estate Agency on the corner by Nancy Dike's law office.

Stopping at Roger Tatro's newsstand, we notice that the Daily Metropolis has just been placed on the stand. As we can see from the headlines, this city can be very proud of their citizens. Skimming through the headlines, we find that their Navy boys, Bill Lathrop, Bradley Bedard, John Provoncha, and Mike Fitzpatrick are home on leave. The play directed by Dom Whitcomb, starring Miss Flora Perlee, is premiering Saturday at the Metropolis Play House. Claire Dumas and Dixie Stokes have just returned from a busy week of work in the nation's Capitol. Janna Kilbourn is departing for Europe on her latest modeling assignment, and Roger Atkins is to be the next man in space.

Leaving the newsstand, we travel around the corner to Main Street, where Sharon (Atkins) Kimball and her husband have a furniture store next to Pat Guthrie's Beauty Salon. Farther down the street we pass by Tom McKean's music shop, and Dick Dwyer's Book Nook.

Our visit wouldn't be complete unless we stopped in at the local school, which boasts one of the most competent faculties in the states. Donna Melvin, Cindy Wedge, Bernadette Cousino, Craig Scribner, and Eva Mastalos are among the faculty members. Frances Goodrich R.N., heads their Health Department. Their P.T.A. is headed by four housewives of Metropolis, whom we recognize as Judy Vincent, Gail Zeno, Dot Benedict, and Linda Rublee.

It's now time to catch one of Edward Tucker's taxis to the Metropolis Airport. On the way there, we pass by four service stations owned by Gary Orvis, Warner Pierce, Mike Booska, and Reg Dearborn, as well as Leonard Cousino's Animal Hospital.

As we enter the gates of the airport, we spot Jim Purinton and Brian Ladeau reporting for work.

We have the pleasure of being accompanied by Lois Devino and Ellen O'Neill. Lois is on a buying trip for Metropolis' leading store, while Ellen is off on another government assignment. After getting seated, we find that Diane Adams and Kathy Lord are our stewardesses.

We are now preparing for take-off, but wait . . . someone is running toward the plane. Who could it be? It's Denny McDonough and his band on their way to their latest job.

When we are finally settled again, we relax and remember the class of '65 when . . .

Chapter 3 THE BEGINNINGS OF GOVERNMENT IN THE UNITED STATES

The roots of American government reach deep into the past. Our system of government did not suddenly spring into being as at the wave of some political magician's wand. Nor was it pulled out of thin air by the

The Colonial Period

Our English, Dutch, Norwegian, French, Spanish, Dutch, Norwegian, and other Europeans settled in parts of what was to become the United States. But it was the English who came in the largest numbers. And it was the English who came to control the thirteen colonies that stretched for 1,300 miles along the Atlantic seaboard.

These early pioneers who cleared the wilderness and fought off the Indians had to back out their own economic future in the New World. But they came here in search of greater freedom and they brought with them the political future with them. The English had long been developing the idea of a government that was not a monarchy but a democracy. They had long been developing the idea of a government that was not a monarchy but a democracy. They had long been developing the idea of a government that was not a monarchy but a democracy.

Founding Fathers at Philadelphia in the summer of 1787. Rather, it has developed through long centuries of experience, tradition, thought, and deed. We shall now review the high points of these beginnings.

SETTLERS AT WORK

Early Americans had to live together in harmony, or they would not survive. This was called "government in order to live," the beginning of our government today.

of which are to be found today—county, borough, jury, sheriff, coroner, and justice of the peace, for example. And all of these were well known in England long before the first Englishman ever heard of America.

(1) The Twin Concepts of Limited Government and Civil Liberties. They brought with them, too, the twin ideas of limited government and civil liberties. That is, that government is not all-powerful; that government is limited in what it may do, and especially, that it is limited in the sense that each man has certain rights that government cannot injure or take away. These great principles of freedom were proclaimed in such historic English documents as the Magna Carta in 1215, the Petition of Right in 1628, and the Bill of Rights and the Act of Toleration of 1689.

(2) The Concept of Representative Government. A third vitally important concept brought to America in English ships was that of representative government. For centuries there had been developing in England the

English Enables the Student to Become Familiar With Various Cultures in the Ever-Changing Periods of Time

English 12CP is a survey course of American literary trends. Students learn appreciation of style and interpretation of context. "No! Moby Dick is not an example of lyric poetry!"

English 11 General is a course in reading comprehension of American literature. "I said Huck Finn, Miss Jeffers, not Mickey!"

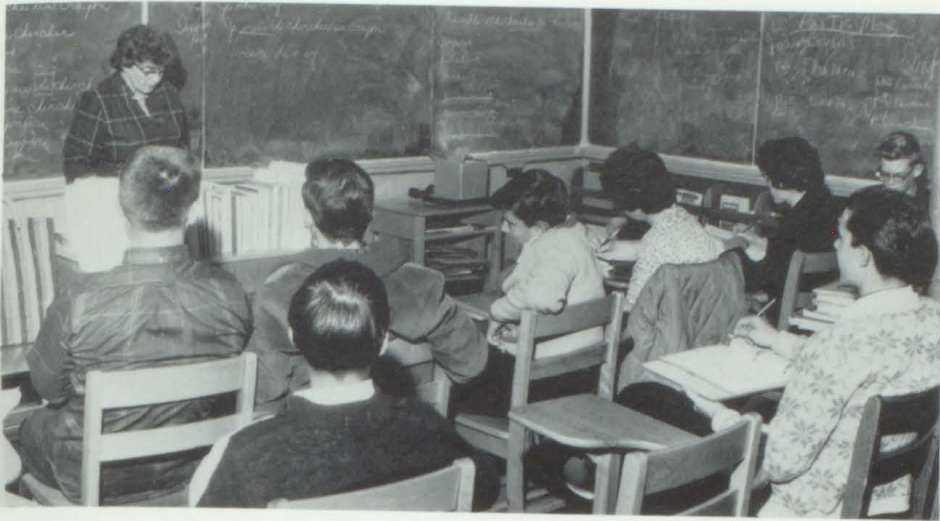

English 12 General gives a basic American literature background and prepares students for the years after high school.

Speech teaches students the techniques of formal and informal speaking.

Foreign Languages Help Us to Understand Our Neighbors and Their Customs

French II students learn to read and speak French through reading various books and conversation drills.

Latin I students receive a background for the future study of other foreign languages.

In German I students learn the fundamentals of the language and start to develop their speaking and reading ability.

French III students learn to speak and read more fluently and get their ideas across in French.

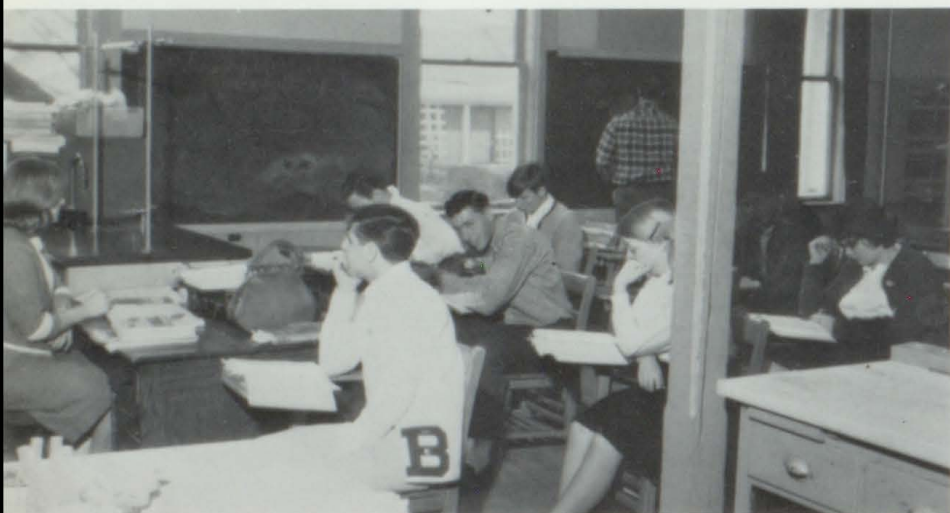

Science Is of Increasing Importance in This Age of Space

Chemistry students study the composition of matter and observe its changes through simple experimentation.

Physics students learn about matter and energy and the many physical laws.

Biology students study plant and animal life, its origin, nature, development, and phenomena.

Qualitative Analysis is an advanced course in experimenting to determine the composition of unknown mixtures.

Mathematics Is Becoming More and More Important in Modern Advancement

Advanced Math students are concerned with the relationships between the sides and angles of triangles, and learn to prove the relationships.

Geometry students study the measurements and relationships of lines, angles, planes, and solids.

Algebra I is a course now offered to eighth graders also. Algebra uses letters and other symbols to analyze relationships.

Social Studies Give An Understanding of the Past and Present

Students in Economics learn about the production and management of public wealth, distribution of goods, and the satisfaction of human needs.

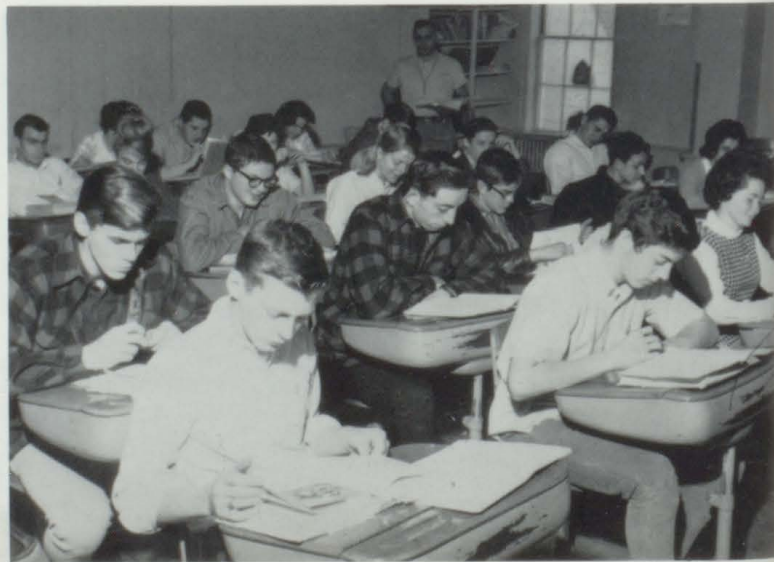

In PAD the problems that face the nation and the world are discussed by the students. Possible solutions are often found.

Civics students learn how their government operates, how it serves them and how they may serve it.

US history students study the background of their country and discuss the problems their forefathers had to meet.

Business Education Develops Skills Which Contribute to Vocational Competency and Training for Personal Use

Election '64

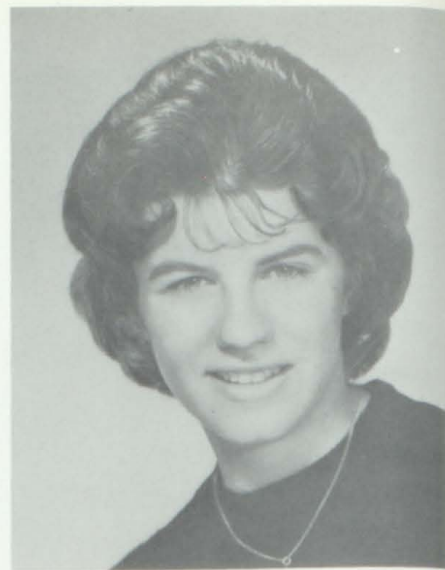

During October of '64 the P.A.D. class, assisted by the Freshman Civics classes, organized a political campaign, or mock election. Much hard work went into it, but it was very educational to all. Student Democratic Chairmen were Steve Halnon and Claire Dumas; Student Republican Chairmen were Chris Burpee and Nancy Dike. Mr. Wilcox and Mr. Twiss were the advisors to the students. On November 3, election day, the Democrats won a landslide victory in all offices, state and national, except in the office of senator.
